Education and programme for families

Also this year in May, Minerals Brno featured a programme for families with children, which also included educational activities. Junior geologists and owners of skilful hands searched for meteorites, tried to tap out a fossil from a brick, and could make their own jewellery or decoration. At the stand of the Institute of Geological Sciences of Masaryk University in Brno, people could learn about the physical properties of minerals and see prehistoric forms of life.

Hall B full to capacity

We were genuinely pleased by the interest of exhibitors in this year's May event. The ground floor of the hall was completely sold out, and not all applicants could be accommodated. The interest was comparable to the events held in November and we look forward to a similarly successful May event next year. We thank our loyal as well as new exhibitors for this success.

Record-breaking visitor turnout

We are also really happy about the high visitor turnout, because we managed to break the previous record set in May. This success is a great challenge for us and we will prepare the future events knowing that we want to at least maintain these attendance numbers.

See you at the 49th session of MINERALS BRNO on 23 – 24 November 2024
